Information on Courses

1. Course Title (English): Creative Writing Workshop

2. Course Code:
   SM1012

3. Course Aims & Objectives: (within 200 words)
   This course examines the idea of creativity via writing.

   Creativity is NOT a mystery. We believe in creativity as a way of life, experienced by the following principles which students should acquire at the end of the course:
   - self-awareness & self understanding
   - integration: the ability to make connections and discover new relations among things, and to see the unfamiliar in the familiar and vice versa
   - flexibility & openness: the ability and readiness to adopt new perspectives and to engage in different points of view
   - observational power: attention to details, ability to use the five senses fully

   In terms of writing, the main objectives are for students to:
   - overcome habitual hurdles, psychological barriers, inhibitions and mind blocks...in writing
   - practice writing as a process of self-exploration and engagement with people and society
   - acquire the ability to capture observable details, movement, space, the effects of time and modes of human interaction
   - create experiences of creativity as a life-style
   - write dynamically and flexibly
   - discover their voice and capacity to achieve a variety of styles
   - become more sensitized to their own writing habits and potentials
   - appreciate the diversity of forms and styles via the close study of literary examples
   - create as a final creative writing project that is inter-disciplinary, research-based,
     and culturally engaged
