Part II

1. Course Aims:

This course aims at introducing students to the key writings on cities, urban life and architecture, to enable them to take a critical look at their everyday environment, and subsequently to come up with their own critical and creative agenda based on the many historical models of critique and interventionism. Special interest would be placed on theoretical discussions on the impact of technology and virtualization on urban life and the formation of communities, to be followed by a revised critique of new forms of government, governance and control.
2. Course Intended Learning Outcomes (CILOs)
(state what the student is expected to be able to do at the end of the course according to a given standard of performance)
